

cut-e: the first point of call for Online Assessment

Introducing cut-e

Finding the perfect match between personal values and corporate culture, individuals and teams, employees' interests and corporate objectives creates true competitive advantage.

Quality is in everything we do

Finding this match governs everything we do at cut-e. We provide tools, knowledge and expertise for the scientific measurement of the human factor. Thus we enable people to make informed decisions about business, staff, their own career and their own life.

Because we understand that these decisions are business critical, we take our role very seriously and feel a responsibility to provide excellent quality products. Our scientific advisory board independently verifies our products and contributes to our position at the forefront of current research. So do the regular validity studies we conduct with clients and selected universities.
